

Hi I'm Fiona! I'm from France and I can't wait to meet you.

I still don't realise that I, as a 19 year old, will be with you in a few days, far from what I know, starting a new experience with you. It seems so far away and yet it comes so quickly. I confess I don't really know how to introduce myself, but I would describe myself as a kind, emotional, compassionate person. I am also sociable despite being an introvert. I adapt quite well, I am curious to discover others, curious to discover in general. I admit I don't have any particular passion but when I do something it's with desire. I like art in general, painting, collages, photography, sewing, writing, theatre, music... I also like spending time in nature, walking, cycling or just listening to what surrounds me... To make it short, I am a sensitive person. I'm into understanding others and I always try to create a space without judgement around me. I have this little protective thing that makes me someone who loves children and connects well with them most of the time. Then I like to make people laugh and smile, I like to share love. I am looking forward to meet you but also to learn about myself and those methods of education that speak to me so much and vibrate with my values. My english isn't the best so speaking may not be my strong point for the first few moments but I have the desire to do it. What counts for me is that the heart speaks. Thank you for welcoming me and understanding me. Have a nice week. See you soon.
